Excerpt: . . . interested in the creation and adoption of a plan respecting the prevention and adjustment of grievances, and in the other specific points mentioned, the Company believes that the Commission will be hardly less interested in its work of social and industrial betterment, some features of which are outlined in Part IV of the Industrial Representation Plan. A reference to this part of the Plan will show that the management regards the promotion of harmony and good-will between the Company and its employees, and the furtherance of the wellbeing of employees and their families and the communities in which they reside, so essential to the successful operation of the Companys industry in an enlightened and profitable manner that it has not only regarded the expenses necessarily incidental to the carrying out of the Plan, including the payment of traveling expenses of employees representatives who attend...
